RECIPE FOR 12 HONEY, OAT AND SPICE CAKES

- 250g Scottish porridge oats
- 125g unsalted butter
- 50g chopped dried apricots or dried apples
- 4 large tablespoons runny honey
- 1 level teaspoon of ground cinnamon

METHOD

- Preheat your oven to 180C (160C in a fan oven). Melt the butter in a large saucepan and remove from the heat.
- Add the honey, oats, cinnamon and dried fruit to the butter and stir until everything is well mixed.
- Grease a baking tray, spoon 12 dollops of the mixture on it and then flatten them slightly.
- Bake in the oven for 10–12 minutes. Place the cakes on a wire rack and leave to cool before scoffing!

Try some Anglo-Saxon cooking. Take photos and evaluate it What snacks today is it similar to?

This Anglo-Saxon artefact is a famous helmet found at Sutton Hoo. Research Sutton Hoo and what was found there. Then recreate your own helmet.

The Battle of Hastings was a significant event in English history. It took place in 1066 and resulted in the Norman conquest of England. The battle was fought between the Norman army, led by William the Conqueror, and the English army, led by Harold Godwinson.

The Bayeux Tapestry, a significant medieval artefact depicts the battle. Recreate a scene from the tapestry; include a timeline of events at the battle and a map of Britain showing the location.
